

REDUCE ARDENNES SALIENT BY 7 MORE MILES

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie

WHILE WE MADE a most auspicious beginning of the Luzon invasion—and the fair fortune continues so far as appears from news dispatches which are lagging because of security censorship—we should be prepared for some of the most bitter fighting of the whole Pacific war—and that means bitter.

As Secretary of War Stimson remarks, although the landings were made with surprising ease, this is only the beginning. We shall see more of those amazing fanatical sacrifices by the Japanese soldiery.

Appropos of this I was talking a couple of days ago with a British general just back from Burma, and he said that in the final great battle which grew out of the Japanese invasion of Indian territory near the Burmese frontier last year, the British killed 50,000 Japanese who made a suicidal stand after being trapped. And that figure wasn't guess-work, because the bodies were counted.

This question of Japanese resistance cropped up last night when your correspondent subjected himself to a hot barrage of questions at a big gathering of enlisted men and Wacs at Mitchell field. They asked: "Will the Japs have to be beaten militarily before they are out?"

That's a tough one because we don't know the limits of Japanese resistance, especially of the civilian population, to the terrors and privations of total war. Indeed, the Japanese government itself can't know how much the people can take, for only now is Nippon beginning to get an idea of total war through our bombings of the home land.

The use of war will tighten rapidly on them now. Our possession of bases in the Philippines will multiply the difficulties of the Mikado's people a hundred-fold, for the bombings will intensify as the Allies will clamp a tight aerial and naval blockade across Japan's lifelines. Nippon will know terrors and privations which she has been dishing out to others but hasn't experienced herself in modern times.

D. D. Igoan-ereneol

However, I think Japanese people are likely to follow their Emperor—who is literally a god to them—so long as he calls them. That means so long as the government instructs him to stand firm, for, despite his exalted place, he is not a free agent.

It strikes me that the government will be influenced greatly by what happens on the continent. The Japanese are powerfully installed in Manchukuo and in most of China's developed territory. They have many resources there, including large war industries. Recently they have been moving some of their home industries to Manchukuo. To cap all this, there are on the continent some 2-3 million Japanese.

LINK BANK THIEF WITH MARINO CASE

Mahoning Prosecutor Issues Fugitive Warrant Against O'Boyle

John A. O'Boyle, 51, arrested in Chicago on charges of stealing $107,000 from the Bank of America, Los Angeles, also faces prosecution on a charge of participating in a district gangland murder in 1937.

O'Boyle, arrested Tuesday by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, was charged with violation of the federal bank robbery statutes. He was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner E. K. Walker, who continued the hearing until Jan. 22.

Mahoning County Prosecuting Attorney William A. Ambrose issued a fugitive warrant Saturday against O'Boyle, who was indicted in 1938 on charges of participating in the murder of Roy "Happy" Marino, whose body was found along State Route 2 near Ridgeport.

Four others indicted with him are serving life terms in the Ohio State penitentiary.

4 Manila Highway Junctions, Railway Fall To Americans

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Jan. 12.—Rapidly advancing Sixth army invaders at Lingayen gulf have seized more than 10 miles of the San Fabian-Manila railroad, overran 50 miles of road networks commanding the north ends of four main highways to Manila and turned what could have been the flank of a good Japanese defense line behind the Agno river.

These are developments for the first 48 hours since Tuesday's invasion.

Today's communique, covering action up to Thursday morning, reported advances during the previous 24 hours of seven to nine miles—generally in the direction of Manila a little over 100 miles south.

These advances, which added five towns to the more than two score communities captured, were limited more by caution and supply lines than by Japanese.

The width of the beachhead along the gulf, originally 15 miles, is 25, with the first real combat contact with the enemy reported on the left flank nine miles southeast of San Fabian.

Wreck Bridges, Trains
From Lingayen to Manila, American planes ranged over the central Luzon plains where great tank battles soon may be fought. They cratered airfields in and around Manila, blew up bridges over which enemy reinforcements are trying to move, wrecked trains and scattered columns of artillery and supply.

American war planes hammered at Luzon targets, meeting negligible Japanese air opposition but heavy ack-ack in the vicinity of Clark field, a prime objective on the road to Manila.

"The enemy still is suffering from the effects of surprise caused by our landing in this sector (Lingayen) in his rear," headquarters said today, "and he has yet been unable to displace the mass of his forces forward from the south in sufficient strength to offer serious resistance."

Run Into Enemy Forces
On the extreme left, Yanks have penetrated nine miles from the coast to seize the road junction of Agno, southeast of fallen San Fabian. They turned up a road forking northeast toward Pozorubio and there ran into Japanese forces.

That road leads north to Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines and possible seat of Japanese leaders.

To the west of this action, troops moving south down a highway from Dagupan toward Manila captured the road junction of Calasiao and pushed on beyond Bulog, a five mile gain.

Forces moving south of captured Lingayen have pushed down Highway 13 to a point past Umunday, seven miles inland. It also is behind the Agno river which curves up to Lingayen gulf and empties into it west of Lingayen town.

Other soldiers of Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth army secured the mouth of the river by occupying Labrador on its west bank.

Within the approximately 200 square miles of Luzon carved out as a great base by scores of thousands of Yanks, Lingayen airfield has been rushed into operation under the direction of Brig. Gen. Leif J. Sverdrup, of St. Louis, Mo.

127 HAVE APPLIED FOR WAR JOBS IN CITY SINCE JAN. 1

Manpower control talk is having its effect on Salem workers.

That's the report from the United States Employment Service office here today as an increase in male traffic, between the ages of 18 and 38, is noted in a degree double what it was during a usual week in 1944.

On figures compiled by Arthur S. Johnston, manager of the Salem office, the increase is placed 100 per cent over last year's ordinary week. Those compilations include the first 10 days of 1945.

One hundred and twenty-seven men have made application for war jobs since Jan. 1, Johnston said, and most were men employed in non-essential or less-essential work. Of that number 59 were 4-F's, he said.

In emphasizing the need for workers, officials at the office here said that two types of employees are especially needed in this district.

A critical shortage of foundry workers is reported. Officials say that foundrymen, laborers qualified to do heavy shop work, are extremely difficult to locate.

The other group on which shortages are critical includes skilled workers of almost all types. Draftsmen, engineers and machinists are high on the shortage list and even part-time employees can be used in these classifications.

Ordinary shop workers, those with no particular skill nor craft, are not needed as bad, and the gaps are filling fast in this group.

Quiz Two In Fire
LIMA, Jan. 12.—The possibility that the Milner hotel fire Sunday was of incendiary origin is being investigated, Police Chief Kermit Westbay said yesterday, and disclosed that a man and woman were being questioned.

The 15,000,000 of them—don't need to give Jan. 15 a thought. They are the ones who in 1944 were paid almost altogether in wages subject to the withholding tax (payroll deductions) and whose wages were not more than $2,700 if single or $3,500 if married.

The other 15,000,000 taxpayers should decide whether they have any homework to do this weekend.

The 15,000,000 include all payers of income tax who:

1. Were not paid wages in 1944. For example, doctor, lawyer, business owner, farm owner, boarding house landlady.
2. Were paid wages not subject to the withholding tax. For example, domestic servant, farm laborer, army officer, minister.
3. Were paid wages subject to the withholding tax but who also received income of $100 or more from other sources.
4. Were paid wages subject to the withholding tax totaling more than $2,700 if single or $3,500 if married.

Many of the 15,000,000 are filing their final 1944 income tax returns now instead of March 15. This has one big advantage: Those who file their final return by Jan. 15, and pay whatever tax is due with it, can forget about any other Jan. 15 duties.

If you don't know what your 1944 income was, and are waiting for the exact figures, you may have some other tasks to perform Jan. 15. Read on:

Being one of the 15,000,000, you probably gave the government an estimate of your 1944 tax last April 15.

If you haven't filed such a declaration, it is due Jan. 15. Use form 1040 ES, and make the closest estimate you can. Under the circumstances you'll have to pay the whole estimated tax in one lump. This will hit a lot of farmers before they were not required to file declarations last April.

If you have already filed a declaration, you can amend it Jan. 15. Use the same form, writing "amended" at the top. Amending your estimate is not compulsory unless you underestimated your tax by 20 per cent or more.

If you filed your declaration last April you may have been making quarterly payments in connection with it. The final payment is due Jan. 15. If you are amending your declaration now, this will change the amount of this payment.

U. S., Japs Fighting Naval, Air Battle

(By Associated Press)
U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Jan. 12.—A tremendous naval-air battle likely is raging today off French Indo-China, where the U. S. Navy's Third fleet and Japanese warships are fighting reinforcements seeking to smash Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion army on Luzon in the Philippines.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz called in war correspondents on short notice last night and stated:

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific fleet are now attacking the enemy off the coast of French Indo-China between Saigon and Camranh bay."

That was all he would say.

The circumstances of location and responsibility of Halsey's powerful fleet—he has been handed the job of keeping the Japanese away from MacArthur's men—suggest that an enemy convoy, escorted by warships, was intercepted enroute to Luzon, 1,000 miles from Saigon.

Camranh bay is the closest Asiatic Japanese fleet base from which the enemy could attempt reinforcement of Luzon.

Many Taxpayers Have Date With Uncle Sam On Monday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—There's a date on the calendar that is rushing down on millions of taxpayers with the speed of a buzz bomb.

The date is Jan. 15—this coming Monday—an income tax date. It has never been an income tax date before, and some of the taxpayers are still asleep.

On the other hand a lot of them are waking up with startled eyes. The Bureau of Internal Revenue says the lines of people seeking information are lengthening all over the country.

Most taxpayers—35,000,000 of them—don't need to give Jan. 15 a thought. They are the ones who in 1944 were paid almost altogether in wages subject to the withholding tax (payroll deductions) and whose wages were not more than $2,700 if single or $3,500 if married.

Yunks Slash Toward Manila
U. S. Sixth Army vanguards drove 18-20 miles inland from Lingayen Gulf across the Luzon plains to the Agno River (white arrow), and were within 95 miles of Manila. Main forces broadened beachhead, capturing Lingayen, Dagupan, Mangaldan, and San Fabian, plus a score or more smaller cities, and advanced to Aguilan-Calasiao highway. Japs were reported massing strength to take stand farther to the south.

Security Basis Of Russian Policy, Says Correspondent

"Russian foreign policy is based upon their search for security and our essential problem is dealing with Russia today is to find a common ground of understanding that is Russia and the democratic society that is ours."

Fleming discussed governmental policies which are becoming more and more liberal, tending to turn Russia toward our ways. Freedom of press, religion and movement as we know it does not exist in Russia, he said.

Churches are once again open in Russia, and while not given government encouragement, are permitted to function with only nominal restraints. Certain subjects once barred in institutions of education.

His subject was "Soviet Diplomacy and the Peace."

Presented to a fairly large audience by Ralph W. Hawley, Town Hall chairman, the CBS war reporter who returned recently from eight months in Russia, urged a realization in this country of the fact that Russia is going through a slow revolution which is bringing conservative elements into prominence.

Russia's present attitude toward the Allies is based upon her old distrust of the western world and her determination to obtain above all else her own security, Fleming averred.

He urged wholehearted support in this country of leaders who are trying to establish a permanent, workable understanding with Russia to insure her participation in a world organization to preserve peace when it has been won.

"Patience must be employed by America and the Allies in their dealings with Russia if another world war is to be averted," Fleming said. Understanding of the Russian's

12 ARE INDICTED BY GRAND JURORS

Six Other Cases Ignored, Including Copacia Stabbing Here

LISBON, Jan. 12.—The grand jury concluded a three-day session Thursday afternoon, returning 12 true bills and ignoring six other cases. Those indicted were:

Ronald Lewis, auto theft; Willard Sizemore, Wellsville, bigamy; Willie Perry, Wellsville, assault with intent to rape; Robert Cheatham, Wellsville, shooting with intent to wound or kill; Jack Shaesten, Lisbon, driving auto with fictitious plates; Robert E. Smith, Pittsburgh, armed robbery; John Herrington, embezzlement; George Taylor, Lisbon, rape with consent.

Cases against the following were ignored: Richard Dale James, stealing rationed articles; Paul Higgins, non-support of minor children; Joseph Gruby, assault and battery; George Taylor, burglary.

Cases ignored included the unsolved stabbing of John Copacia in a Salem clubroom fight. Fifteen witnesses testified in the stabbing. They were unable to identify the knife-wielder.

Forty-six witnesses were examined in the three-day hearing and the jury concluded the session with a trip to inspect the Mahoning county jail where Columbiana county prisoners are housed.

The jury's report on the jail follows:

"We found the conditions satisfactory, excepting the halls, which in our judgment, should be better lighted. The kitchen was clean and the food is adequate and well prepared."

"We recommend the construction of a county jail and a detention home for juveniles, to be erected as economically and as soon as possible."

"We suggest the construction of two cell blocks to house prisoners while attending court as a temporary measure until a jail may be constructed."

Allies Boost Prisoner Toll Over 30,000

(By The Associated Press)
PARIS, Jan. 12.—Allied armies apparently sheared off the western seven miles of the Belgian bulge today and gouged tentatively into the north and south flanks of the eastern half of the salient.

The United States Third army penetrated twice into the German south flank between Bastogne and Vianden, in Luxembourg.

The First army stabbed across the Salm river to within 10 miles of St. Vith. This action, with those of the Third army, threatened to undercut any attempt by Field Marshal Von Rundstedt to hold along the course of the Ourthe river and yield only the western half of his salient.

The Germans appeared to have pulled all but the last delaying rearguards from the western end of the Ardennes bulge, where the First and Third armies had netted more than 30,000 prisoners, killed uncounted thousands of Germans and destroyed at least the equivalent of six or seven divisions of tanks.

The Sixth army group in Alsace-Lorraine, where the Germans threatened Strasbourg in diversionary attacks, had bagged another 5,294 captives in the current campaign.

At points the Belgian salient is only seven miles wide. As the Germans withdrew in near zero weather from the west, Supreme headquarters announced firm contact had been established between British forces and the American Third army near St. Hubert. That anchor town was entered.

Russians Rise To Action On Vistula River Bridgehead

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Jan. 12.—The German radio said today that the Russians had opened an offensive on a broad front in southern Poland, striking from the Vistula bridgehead west of Baranow toward Krakow.

The Russians established the Baranow bridgehead, 125 airline miles south of ruined Warsaw, during the summer. In drives across the rolling Polish plain, they struck within 35 miles of Krakow, ancient capital of the Polish kings and a city of 254,000.

The first attacking waves were completely wiped out by fire from our guns, mortars and infantry weapons," the German asserted.

"Succeeding columns which reached the main battle lines were forced back in extremely violent fighting. Bitter fighting is going on for some penetration areas."

"Russian losses in the first hours of the battle were extremely heavy."

When the Russian offensive ground to a stop beyond Baranow during the summer, the Russians said they were within 80 miles or so of German Silesia, second only to the Ruhr as a German arsenal. Silesia is rich in coal and iron and studded with war plants.

At that time, the Russians also said they were within 18 miles of Kielce (58,200) and 17 of the important Polish city of Tarnow.

The Russians have another Vistula bridgehead closer to Warsaw at Warka.

The south Polish plain over which the Germans say the Russians struck is one of the easier approaches to Berlin.

CONFISCATE SIX SLOT MACHINES IN LEETONIA RAID

LISBON, Jan. 12.—Sheriff's deputies raided three establishments in Leetonia Thursday, confiscated six slot machines and cited to the grand jury those in whose possession they were found.

Three of the machines were picked up at Frank Dominic's gas station, two at the Leetonia hotel and one at the Burick and Morris drug store.

Those cited to the jury are: Alisia G. Neiman, woman operator of the hotel; Frank Dominic and a clerk at the drug store, Marge Lessen. They came in voluntarily and appeared before the grand jury.

Sheriff George Hayes said Thursday's raid was just the beginning of a drive to root slots from the county. He said that unless local authorities heed his warning to clean house, he will do it for them.

The sheriff said his office has been tied up serving legal papers in civil suits and has not heretofore had the time to clear the county of the machines.

The raid, made at noon, was the first within the limits of a village, which has been considered under the jurisdiction of local authorities for several years. Deputies Howard Clark and Harold Shepard made the raids.

Sheriff Hayes stated that after they had served their purpose as evidence, the machines would be sold under order of the court to junk dealers so they may find their way into war production.

BUC PAYMENTS IN '44 HIT NEW LOW

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12.—Unemployment compensation payments in Ohio dropped to $1,087,000 in 1944, an all-time low since benefits were inaugurated in 1933, Administrator Charles H. Jones of the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation said today.

He said 1944 payments, which reflected the state's high employment level, were 29 per cent lower than those of 1943 and 96 per cent under 1940, the peak year.

A weekly average of only 1,516 persons received payments last year, he added, as compared with a 1943 average of 2,464 and $0,043 in 1940.

Jones reported that the Ohio BUC closed the year with a $422,627,000 balance in its reserve fund available for benefit payments, plus approximately $1,000,000 interest for the last quarter of 1944 to be credited to the fund by the federal government.

MacArthur's Return

A quirk of history robs Americans of some of their satisfaction over Gen. MacArthur's return to Luzon. Three years ago, Gen. MacArthur should have been equipped well enough to have stayed on Luzon in the first place.

After these many months, at the cost of thousands of lives, billions of dollars and the expenditure of enough of the nation's energy to perform a military miracle, our position in the Pacific is beginning to be as secure in fact as we were told it was just before Pearl Harbor.

At long last, this nation is back where it came into the war. Gen. MacArthur has returned to Luzon. The conquest of the island is still ahead; it will be costly. In the meantime, numerous Pacific islands which had been allowed to fall into Japanese hands through carelessness and sometimes maliciousness have been removed and other islands isolated and immobilized as military factors.

The United States has developed its naval power. It has developed effective striking power on land and in the air. Its military leaders have worked out new and successful techniques of invasion. After more than three years, we are as strong relative to Japan as wishful thinking made us seem to be in the last months of 1941—before the great disillusionment after Pearl Harbor.

These thoughts occur inevitably as Gen. MacArthur returns to the Philippines, where American prestige came perilously close to the disappearing point in the hopeless stands on Bataan and Corregidor. A wonderful military accomplishment is in the making, but it has been preceded by some of the most inept fumbling of responsibility for national defense in the annals of American history—fumbling so utterly without justification that its climax at Pearl Harbor still must be screened from the public's bitter scrutiny.

Advance and Be Recognized

The omen for internationalism has been brightened by appointment of three senators of that cult to the foreign relations committee. This is the committee that will prepare whatever legislation is needed to keep the United States safe from isolationism. The three new internationalists on the committee are Hatch of New Mexico, Hill of Alabama and Lucas of Illinois. They replace Clark of Missouri, Gillette of Iowa and Reynolds of North Carolina, all proclaimed at one time or another by someone or other to be isolationists.

Unfortunately, no definition of an isolationist or isolationism exists. There have been times when it was plain that an isolationist was being used to indicate nothing whatever, except a difference of political opinion. Some Democrats have used it as a synonym for Republican, as a successor in the party line of smear words, such as economic royalist, Tory, Bourbon, etc. Idealists have used it in some instances to denote everything that was bad, as opposed to everything that was good.

In the rough-and-tumble of events, it appears that isolationism and isolationists have been overcome and internationalism and internationalists now are in the saddle, triumphant. There has been a great victory; the new faces in the senate foreign relations committee are supposed to be symbolic. But it is unfortunate that internationalism as the alternative to isolationism is as vaguely defined as isolationism.

Aside from being a desire to achieve harmony and understanding between nations, which isolationists, themselves, professed to share, no one knows what internationalism is. This nation's foreign policy is now presumed to be safely in the hands of internationalists, but to date the policy is as vaguely defined as the viewpoint of the persons who are guiding it. There is no clearer example of the national weakness for labels to conceal the fact there is nothing to reveal.

Military Manpower

Undersecretary of War Patterson groups military and productive manpower needs for the first six months of 1945 to reach a total of 1,600,000—900,000 for military service, 700,000 for war-supporting activities.

The grouping is official confirmation of something that has been growing clearer since the beginning of the war and now has emerged as one of the salient facts of modern warring. Military manpower in modern times is the sum of fighting men and producers. Germany's secret—its ability to surprise the Allies with seemingly impossible military exertions at a late date in its war effort—undoubtedly is its exploitation of European labor. By the same token, China and India, with vast resources of manpower, have remained and must remain military weak because they lack productive manpower to back up their fighting forces. Russia's hordes, always numerically impressive, became military potent only in proportion to their ability to produce weapons for fighting men. Russian shortcomings in production were still serious, until they were overcome by the productive power of the United States and Great Britain.

In this country, the fundamental war problem is how to strike a proper balance between men in uniform and men in overalls. That is behind all past and present efforts to place a sufficient number of men where they are needed in war production and at the same time to reserve an adequate number for the fighting forces. The manpower problem has been aggravated, it goes without saying, by the failure and inability of America's allies to provide the bulk of the fighting forces while it provided the bulk of the production. In this stage of the war, this country is being expected to provide the bulk of both—the ultimate measure of America's power to make war.

On Home Grounds

The same tactical advantage which German generals enjoy when they match wits with United States generals in western Europe and which the Japanese have had throughout their island campaign now accrues to Gen. MacArthur in his campaign on Luzon. He is fighting on home grounds.

While the Japanese studied the Philippines for years and have been in military occupation long enough to know the terrain thoroughly, their knowledge and familiarity will be matched by MacArthur's. Furthermore, it may be assumed that on their return to the familiar waters around Luzon and Manila bay, the United States admirals who expect to fight another decisive naval battle during the battle of the Philippines also are free of the handicap they bore while fighting in waters better known by the Japanese.

The offensive on Luzon is aimed at Manila, Manila bay and the former United States naval base at Cavite. The main Philippines island, geographically a pistol pointed straight at Formosa to the north, is to be made a major base for future land, sea and air offensives, fulfilling the purpose for which it was ideally suited in 1941 when war with Japan was such a remote possibility that its military importance actually was a matter for debate. It was argued then that it could not be held if Japan decided to seize it. Today, it is being taken for granted that it not only can be held against Japanese opposition but first wrested from Japanese control.

DESPITE obstacles, postponements and other frustrating circumstances, this day may be a constructive and profitable one by aggressive and well-planned activities. Initiative and a prudent show of force and determination should be instrumental in breaking down depressions, normal limitations and all forms of thwarting persons or situations. Tact, patience and perseverance may prove effective, when more strenuous tactics fail and arouse reprisals.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may turn difficulties and depressions, with impediments and obstacles, into gainful and pleasant lines, by the use of tact, amiability, adherence to accepted codes and systems, when aggression, antagonism, or use of force and impetuosity or erratic conduct fail. With poise, vigilance and strict attention to details and accepted procedures unexpected success, with increased assets, profits and other material as well as sentimental returns may be looked for. Conflict at home should yield to finesse rather than force or strife.

A child born on this day should be active, energetic, forceful and ambitious, but should find that finesse, diplomacy and tact sometimes produce more happiness and material satisfactions.

Routine Activity Best Sprain Cure

modern day and age when "only a sprain" really means only a sprain.

In other days it was a generally held article of belief that a sprain was worse than a broken bone and the victim was fixed up in a cast and put to bed for six weeks, and then given crutches so that he hobbled around for another three or four months trying to get his ankle loosened up.

There were two factors which conducted to this unhappy state of affairs—one was the treatment and the other was diagnosis.

Old Time Treatment

To explain the latter first, this gospel about sprains being worse than fractures was held largely before the days of the X-ray. Many injuries which look like sprains are really small or peculiar fractures. And since a differential diagnosis is almost impossible by palpation and inspection alone, the safest thing for the old time practitioner to do would be to put the limb in a cast and give it plenty of time to heal, so he wouldn't be blamed if a bad result occurred.

Now with modern X-ray equipment it can be said that hardly one case out of a thousand of bone fracture is not spotted by the X-ray. So the doctor knows what he is dealing with and of an absolute certainty. The great lesson of falls and injuries is to heed your doctor's advice and have an X-ray taken, no matter how trivial the matter may seem to me. Never mind about the expense. There are no priorities on X-rays and it will be cheaper in the long run.

The second reason why the old fashioned practitioner thought sprains were worse than breaks was his treatment, which was designed to stiffen up the ligaments so they came out as unpliant as shoe leather.

Working a Sprain

The modern surgeon is hard boiled about sprains. He learned from boys who played tennis and baseball against his advice that if you get out and work a sprain it will get well sooner than if you baby it. Or to put it in the restrained terms of an army medical officer, whose report lies before me—"Invariable patients whether with moderate or severe sprain and almost irrespective of the type of treatment given, who were immediately sent back to routine activity did better than those who were put at rest for a few days with limited or no use of the part."

The ones who were inactivated for one or more days by being put to bed for cold and then hot applications were often disabled for periods of a few days to two or three weeks. One patient was disabled eight weeks.

Note that the report says—"Irrespective of treatment." The latest and certainly the flimsiest treatment is to inject novocain or procain or some local anaesthetic into the sprained ligaments. This stops pain and lets the fellow go on about his business with no discomfort which might tend to allow him to favor the sprained member. But just as good results were obtained by strapping with adhesive tape or an elastic bandage, or, if the victim was one of your tough brethren, just let him go without any support or even arnica to rub on. It may seem cruel, but it comes out best in the long run.

The lesson is, when you have a fall or a tumble get an X-ray. Then if there are not bones broken go your way and fear no consequences.

Military Manpower

Undersecretary of War Patterson groups military and productive manpower needs for the first six months of 1945 to reach a total of 1,800,000—900,000 for military service, 700,000 for war-supporting activities.

The grouping is official confirmation of something that has been growing clearer since the beginning of the war and now has emerged as one of the salient facts of modern warring. Many injuries which look like sprains are really small or peculiar fractures. And since a differential diagnosis is almost impossible by palpation and inspection alone, the safest thing for the old time practitioner to do would be to put the limb in a cast and give it plenty of time to heal, so he wouldn't be blamed if a bad result occurred.

Now with modern X-ray equipment it can be said that hardly one case out of a thousand of bone fracture is not spotted by the X-ray. So the doctor knows what he is dealing with and of an absolute certainty. The great lesson of falls and injuries is to heed your doctor's advice and have an X-ray taken, no matter how trivial the matter may seem to me. Never mind about the expense. There are no priorities on X-rays and it will be cheaper in the long run.

The second reason why the old fashioned practitioner thought sprains were worse than breaks was his treatment, which was designed to stiffen up the ligaments so they came out as unpliant as shoe leather.

Working a Sprain

The modern surgeon is hard boiled about sprains. He learned from boys who played tennis and baseball against his advice that if you get out and work a sprain it will get well sooner than if you baby it. Or to put it in the restrained terms of an army medical officer, whose report lies before me—"Invariable patients whether with moderate or severe sprain and almost irrespective of the type of treatment given, who were immediately sent back to routine activity did better than those who were put at rest for a few days with limited or no use of the part."

The ones who were inactivated for one or more days by being put to bed for cold and then hot applications were often disabled for periods of a few days to two or three weeks. One patient was disabled eight weeks.

Note that the report says—"Irrespective of treatment." The latest and certainly the flossiest treatment is to inject novocain or procain or some local anesthetic into the sprained ligaments. This stops pain and lets the fellow go on about his business with no discomfort which might tend to allow him to favor the sprained member. But just as good results were obtained by strapping with adhesive tape or an elastic bandage, or, if the victim was one of your tough brethren, just let him go without any support or even amica to rub on.

It may seem cruel, but it comes out best in the long run.

Lesson is, when you have a fall or tumble get an X-ray. Then if there are not bones broken go your way and fear no consequences.

Prisoner of War Mail Should Be Properly Addressed

Postal authorities today issued a word of caution to families and friends of American prisoners of war concerning the proper addressing of their mail.

Many Yanks in German and other prison camps have not been receiving their full share of mail because of improper addressing.

Mail will not be accepted in Germany for delivery if there are any marks other than Swiss postmark on the envelope.

To help insure delivery the post-office department has issued a special paper which must be used for the letter, obtainable at the postoffice. The letter may be enclosed in any kind of envelope, which must bear the name and rank of the prisoner, his prison number, the words "U. S. Prisoner of War," the name of the camp and its number and the name of the country in which he is held.

The letter and envelope, left unsealed, should be placed in another envelope, sealed and addressed: Postmaster, Prisoner of War Mail, Via New York City (or other post-office).

No postage is required to send it to the postmaster address. Postage is placed on the inner envelope, according to rates which may be learned at the local postoffice.

1,422 Landlords Given Rent Increase Authority

More than 2,223 petitions for rent increases have been received, and 1,422 of them granted in the Wheeling-Stuebenville Defense Rental area since OPA put control of residential rents into effect here. Area Rent Director Samuel M. Noyes announced today.

Of this total, some 637, or 45 per cent, have been granted under the provision affording a landlord relief when he has made a major capital improvement to his property.

To expedite the processing of petitions under this adjustment provision, Noyes asked that landlords in preparing their petitions give full and complete details of the improvement made.

As one example of what might constitute a major capital improvement, he cited the complete rehabilitation of a dwelling unit or an apartment house. "Where this has been done," Noyes said, "the landlord should state in his petition the amount of money he spent in the rehabilitation. He should give details of how the money was spent, such as 'new roof,' 're-built cellar walls,' 'rewiring,' 'new plumbing,' 'complete re-decoration'."

"Complete details will enable the rent office to process the petition quickly, eliminating unnecessary delay which would be occasioned if the rent office has to request additional information."

cation are again being taught and subjects previously banned are being discussed, within limits.

People Are Weary

However, government control of press, radio, public expression, labor and other branches of Soviet life is rigid and Russian willingness to accept regimentation is universal, the speaker said.

"The Russian today is weary, but he is not apathetic. He has no martial spirit, but he keeps going, working and living to carry on the war and to follow his leaders' program for Russian advancement."

"The people, under complete mobilization for war, are living on the same rations today as in the early days of the war. Their chief foods are black bread and cabbage soup. Commodities are purchased in government operated stores under a rationing system for nominal cost, or at certain commercial stores, opened to dispose of surplus commodities, where many items can be obtained without rationing, at exorbitant prices."

Russians count their wealth today, the correspondent informed his listeners, not in money but in privileges. Government approval of a worker's production record may bring him better living conditions, better clothes, better food.

Recent governmental decrees, designed to protect the family unit by making divorces practically unobtainable give special privileges to large families and impose taxes on unmarried persons or small families. Such measures are the result of the tremendous drain on population which the war has produced, through deaths in battle, from starvation and privation.

Russia faces a great task of rebuilding when the war is over, Fleming said. The tremendous physical destruction which her cities have suffered poses a reconstruction job which he believes may take as long as 20 years.

Russian Diplomacy

Fleming compared Russian diplomacy with American, pointing out that American diplomats are given liberty to make numerous decisions on their own judgment while the Russian diplomat abroad is not permitted to make even the most minor decisions without first consulting the government which is Stalin, ultimately.

Recent recognition by the Soviet government of the Lublin provisional government of Poland, which the speaker described as a purely Communist group, is based upon Russia's desire for a bargaining agent in the coming conferences with her Allies.

Fleming voiced the opinion that Russia would use the Lublin provisional government as a means of demanding certain concessions from the Allies, in return for which, he declared, Russia is prepared to give certain concessions.

JAPS REPORT NEW LANDINGS BY U. S.

LONDON, Jan. 12 — A Japanese radio commentator, heard in Australia, said today another American landing in the Manila bay area to follow that at Lingayen "cannot yet be completely written off" and reported two more American convoys in Philippine waters.

One convoy of about 150 ships, the radio said, had been sighted off Panay island, and another of between 100 and 150 vessels off Negros island.

Post-Holiday Tragedy

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12.—Lights on a Christmas tree which had been left standing so pictures of it could be made and sent overseas, caused the death today of Mrs. Rose Furin, 26, of suburban Berea.

Mrs. Furin died of burns received Wednesday when she rescued her two infant children from a fire which firemen said started from short-circuiting of the tree lights.

Fireman First Class Steven Furin, her husband, is with the Navy in the South Pacific.

PRIVATE TO HANG FOR BRITISH CRIME

Pittsburgh Soldier Found Guilty of Shooting British Diplomat

ATTLEBRIDGE, Eng., Jan. 12.—A 12-man jury court martial today sentenced Pvt. George E. Smith of Pittsburgh to hang for murdering Sir Eric Teichman, British diplomat.

Smith, standing in front of the court, swayed as the sentence was read but recovered his composure and left the courtroom handcuffed to one of his escorts. He smiled faintly as he went out.

The prosecution rested with the assertion it was fortunate that the one witness to the shooting of the former British embassy attaché in Chungking "was not killed by Smith on that occasion."

That witness was Pvt. Leonard Wojtacha, Detroit, Mich., who accompanied Smith on an afternoon gunning trip Dec. 3 during which Sir Eric was shot on the grounds of his estate.

By request of defense counsel, Smith disrobed before the 12-man U. S. court martial and showed himself tattooed from neck to knees. Pictured by his counsel as a homicidal degenerate with a mental age of nine years, he declined to take the stand.

Maj. Charles F. Brockus of Kansas City, Mo., of the prosecution contended Smith could be considered only "morally insane."

000,000 Japanese soldiers who hang themselves in like gophers during their long occupation.

It's difficult to escape the thought that the war lords might decide make a final stand on the continent, even if things get too hot for them to hold out in Japan. I do advance that as a probability, but it surely is a possibility.

Undoubtedly much may depend on whether Russia comes into the war against Japan. Should that happen it would, of course, be a body blow to any scheme for holding on the continent. As things now stand, the Chinese are so militarily that they are hanging by their teeth, and the Allies have a long way to go before they can establish a fighting machine in China capable of ousting the invaders.

In any event, we certainly must plan on having to beat the Japanese militarily before they quit. It would be foolish to assume otherwise.

Cites Progress Of Emmanuel Lutheran

Election of officers and the annual report of the pastor on the progress of the church highlighted the annual meeting of the Emmanuel Lutheran church Wednesday night.

Rev. John Bauman, pastor of the church for the past 11 years, traced the progress and improvement in church membership and finances during the past year and related the struggle—now completed—which the congregation has undergone to bring the organization to financial safety.

Officers are: President, John F. Schmid; vice president, Rudolph Linder; secretary, Walter Yarian; assistant secretary, Matt Liebhart; financial secretary, Mrs. George Woerther; treasurer, Carl Abe; elder, C. O. Schaefer; trustees, Simon Miller, Jr., William Adams; deacons, William Holzinger, John Krauss, Simon Theiss, Fred Theiss, Sr., and Matt Kraus; organists, Mrs. William Seeman, Mrs. John F. Schmid and Miss Katherine Minth.

Rev. Bauman pointed out that the church had overcome an indebtedness of $57,250 in an 11-year period and had completely paid off a mortgage on its building. The mortgage was liquidated in nine years and the ceremony marking the final payment was observed Oct. 1, 1944.

A total of 11,918 people attended Sunday morning services during the year, an average of 229 per service. Lenten service attendance reached 1,176.

Sunday school attendance was 8,294 in 1944. Average attendance was 164 per Sunday.

Thirteen members of the church died during 1944 and Rev. Bauman had charge of 10 other funerals.

Seven marriages were performed and 34 baptisms of 32 adults and two children were recorded. Confirmations of 14 children and four adults and 1,562 communions were completed.

A total of 604 confirmed members and 806 baptized members are now on the church roll. Rev. Bauman preached 124 sermons.

A total of 512 letters were mailed from the church to servicemen in 1944 and the church publication, "Mighty Fortress," reached 1,243 in service circulation alone.

Rev. Bauman called for continued enthusiastic support of the church in the coming year, adding that the "spirit of Christ will prevail."

Washington Briefs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In the 78th Congress just ended, 8,852 bills were introduced and of that number 989 of them now are laws. The recent appointment of Edward R. Stettinius as secretary of state makes five New Yorkers in a cabinet of only 10 members. President Roosevelt is our most traveled President. A White House correspondent recently pointed out that in 1944 President Roosevelt was away from the White House 24 out of the 52 weeks of the year.

Cites Progress Of Emmanuel Lutheran

Election of officers and the annual report of the pastor on the progress of the church highlighted the annual meeting of the Emmanuel Lutheran church Wednesday night.

Rev. John Bauman, pastor of the church for the past 11 years, traced the progress and improvement in church membership and finances during the past year and related the struggle—now completed—which the congregation has undergone to bring the organization to financial safety.

Officers are: President, John F. Schmid; vice president, Rudolph Linder; secretary, Walter Yarian; assistant secretary, Matt Liebhart; financial secretary, Mrs. George Woerther; treasurer, Carl Abe; elder, C. O. Schaeffer; trustees, Simon Miller, Jr., William Adams; deacons, William Holzinger, John Krauss, Simon Theiss, Fred Theiss, Sr., and Matt Kraus; organists, Mrs. William Seeman, Mrs. John F. Schmid and Miss Katherine Minth.

Rev. Bauman pointed out that the church had overcome an indebtedness of $57,250 in an 11-year period and had completely paid off a mortgage on its building. The mortgage was liquidated in nine years and the ceremony marking the final payment was observed Oct. 1, 1944.

A total of 11,918 people attended Sunday morning services during the year, an average of 229 per service. Lenten service attendance reached 1,176.

Sunday school attendance was 8,294 in 1944. Average attendance was 164 per Sunday.

Thirteen members of the church died during 1944 and Rev. Bauman had charge of 10 other funerals.

Seven marriages were performed and 34 baptisms of 32 adults and two children were recorded. Confirmations of 14 children and four adults and 1,562 communions were completed.

A total of 604 confirmed members and 806 baptized members are now on the church roll. Rev. Bauman preached 124 sermons.

A total of 512 letters were mailed from the church to servicemen in 1944 and the church publication, "Mighty Fortress," reached 1,243 in service circulation alone.

Rev. Bauman called for continued enthusiastic support of the church in the coming year, adding that the "spirit of Christ will prevail."

Washington Briefs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In the 78th Congress just ended, 8,852 bills were introduced and of that number 989 of them now are laws. The recent appointment of Edward R. Stettinius as secretary of state makes five New Yorkers in a cabinet of only 10 members.

President Roosevelt is our most traveled President. A White House correspondent recently pointed out that in 1944 President Roosevelt was away from the White House 24 out of the 52 weeks of the year.

Coach Cabas' Columbiana Clippers Set County Cage Pace

Unbeaten Outfit Bidding For Tri-County Title And Rated High In State Race

There are a lot of top-notch basketball teams in Columbiana county this season, but the record of the Columbiana Clippers, coached by John Cabas, is by far the most enviable compiled thus far.

With half of a 16-game schedule already past history, Cabas' unbeaten outfit is pointing to the balance of the season with even more vigor and determination than was in force at the outset of the 1944-45 season.

Already the Clipper cagers are marked as serious bidders for the 1945 Ohio Class B championship. Last season, Akron Ellet, a team that went on to win the title, eliminated Columbiana from the tournament. Akron Ellet has already been beaten this season, but Columbiana remains on the victory trail with the identical squad that did the majority of the playing last year.

Not only have the Class B cagers topped all comers, but they have done so with apparent ease in all cases but one.

In eight tries the Clippers have piled up 47 points for an average of 59 points per game. Opponents have tallied 241 points for an average of 30 points per game.

Being unbeaten is the goal and hope of every team, but Columbiana has other things to consider this season. Champions of the Tri-County league in 1944, the Clippers are out to retain that title—and the going is looming as anything but easy.

So far no league games have been played, but tonight the squad meets its first opponent at Lisbon. Coach Cabas' Rutter's aggregation, beaten already this year by the Clippers, 57-35, are out for an upset.

The first Columbiana-Lisbon game, played on Columbiana's floor, gave the Clippers no trouble and it is just that factor that Rutter is hoping to utilize in attempting a win tonight. The other game was not a league contest.

Guarding against over-confidence, Coach Cabas is determined his squad will perform on the rooney Lisbon court with the same accuracy and point-getting ability they have displayed at home all year.

On their one try on a large floor this season, at Leetonia, the Clippers found no trouble in hitting the hoop, scoring 65 points to the opposition's 12.

High-scoring for the Clippers so far this year is talented Harry Hollinger, who stands six feet, four and half inches. Hollinger, averaging 13 1/2 per try, has marked up 110 points in eight games.

Close behind the lanky pivot man is diminutive Harry Case, a forward with an eye for points. Case has an average of better than 13 per game and a total of 104 points in eight games.

Larry Keck, a guard, is next with an eight point average and a 56-point total. Bill Newell at the other guard spot has collected 56 points for an average of seven per game. Keith Laughlin, Don Evans and Bob Egan, who have been alternating at the forward job, have 22, 36 and 23 points, respectively.

Unquestionably a well-rounded squad now, the Clippers are well stocked with reserve power, but the services threaten to demolish that smooth-working machine somewhat. Coach Cabas, who is slated to enter the armed forces before too many games are past and several other Clippers are contemplating enlistment.

With that problem facing him and the complete round of Tri-County competition yet on the books, Coach Cabas has his worries. So far the Columbiana outfit has taken Fairfield, Salem, New Waterford, Lisbon, North Lima, Alumn, Austintown Fitch and Leetonia in stride, but the future opposition looms as strong, if not stronger than any faced so far.

The next four games, with Lisbon, Minerva, East Palestine, and Sebring are all Tri-County games—and plenty important to a title-seeking team.

East Palestine, Louisville, Boardman and Sebring are the obvious tough assignments in the loop race and some as difficult or more so may crop up—as they always do when the rivalries and import are as heavy as in the seven-team league.

Police Quiet Hunters
HARRISBURG, Ill.—The Harrisburg police force was called to maintain order when a hardware store put 350 boxes of shotgun shells, 15 shells to the box, on sale recently. Approximately 500 would-be purchasers lined the sidewalk in front of the store and when they couldn't buy the size they wanted, they took another size, with the idea of swapping with somebody who needed that size or borrowing a neighbor's shotgun to fit the shells.

COACHES SUGGEST RULE CHANGES AT NCAA CONVENTION

Turn Down Once Again Plan to Number Plays in Grid Game

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Jan. 12.—Already confronted with a recommendation by coaches that revisions be made in the football rules, the National Collegiate Athletic Association formally opened its 39th annual convention here today.

The football coaches, who have been meeting for two days, submitted five major rules changes to the NCAA's rules committee which will meet within a few weeks.

The NCAA currently is operating under "frozen" football rules, but Prof. Philip O. Badger of New York University, president of the organization, said yesterday the time had come for rules changes at least to be "considered."

The major changes proposed by the coaches would outlaw the out of bounds kickoff and would permit the throwing of forward passes anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. Now the passer must be five yards behind the line.

The first session today was a joint meeting of the NCAA, the Football Coaches association and the National Physical Education association.

One of the first thought that popped up was what the NCAA is going to do about college basketball teams which are using professional baseball players. Prof. Badger asserted, however, that that question had been settled.

Eligibility No Problem
He explained that the NCAA has its eligibility rules and assumes its members will live up to them. If they don't, they're ineligible to compete in the NCAA basketball tournaments.

He said schools such as Hamline and Ohio university, which are using pro baseball players on their basketball teams, could not compete in the NCAA basketball tournaments with those players.

Howie Schultz, Brooklyn Dodger first baseman, plays with Hamline and Jerry Malovan, Newark International league pitcher, is playing with Ohio university.

In addition to the kickoff and forward pass changes the coaches proposed:

1. That use of a one-inch tee on the kickoff be mandatory.
2. That the hand must be held against the body in making a forearm block and the striking an opponent's face with the elbow be prohibited.

3. That an attempted lateral pass which is thrown forward result in a penalty of five yards from the point where the pass is thrown.
Suggestions that games consist of 100 plays and that second and fourth periods run 13 minutes with six plays after that were voted down.

Muskingum college trounced Ashland college, 59 to 46, last night for its first Ohio conference victory of the season. The Muskies dropped their first two games.

In non-league games, Wilberforce whipped Wilmington, 50 to 39, and Toledo downed Camp Perry's soldier team, 48 to 33.

The Muskies' victory snapped a three-game losing streak. Larry Kukura, the winners' 17-year-old forward from Campbell, O., caged 24 points, while Joe Brubaker and Earl Grover got 19 and 18 points, respectively, for Ashland.

Ashland's conference record now stands at 2-2.

Tommy Jones of Wilberforce scored 26 points against Wilmington, while Bill Ramsey paced the losers with 16. Wilberforce trailed early in the game but pulled ahead 19 to 15 at the intermission.

Coches' Cabas' Columbiana Clippers Set County Cage Pace

Unbeaten Outfit Bidding For Tri-County Title And Rated High In State Race

There are a lot of top-notch basketball teams in Columbiana county this season, but the record of the Columbiana Clippers, coached by John Cabas, is by far the most enviable compiled thus far.

With half of a 16-game schedule already past history, Cabas' unbeaten outfit is pointing to the balance of the season with even more vigor and determination than was in force at the outset of the 1944-45 season.

Already the Clipper cagers are marked as serious bidders for the 1945 Ohio Class B championship. Last season, Akron Ellet, a team that went on to win the title, eliminated Columbiana from the tournament.

Not only have the Class B cagers topped all comers, but they have done so with apparent ease in all cases but one.

In eight tries the Clippers have piled up 47 points for an average of 59 points per game. Opponents have tallied 241 points for an average of 30 points per game.

Being unbeaten is the goal and hope of every team, but Columbiana has other things to consider this season. Champions of the Tri-County league in 1944, the Clippers are out to retain that title and the going is looking as anything but easy.

So far no league games have been played, but tonight the squad meets its first difficult test at Lisbon. Coach Bob Butler's aggregation, beaten last year by the Clippers, 37-35, are out for an upset.

The first Columbiana-Lisbon game, played on Columbiana's floor, gave the Clippers no trouble and is just that factor that Butler is hoping to utilize in attempting a win tonight. The other game was not a league contest.

Guarding against over-confidence, Coach Cabas is determined his squad will perform on the roomy Lisbon court with the same accuracy and point-getting ability they have displayed at home all year.

On their one try on a large floor this season, at Leetonia, the Clippers found no trouble in hitting the hoop, scoring 65 points to the opposition's 12.

High-scorer for the Clippers so far this year is talented Harry Hollinger, who stands six feet, four and half inches, Hollinger, averaging 13.4 per try, has marked up 110 points in eight games.

Close behind the lanky pivot man is diminutive Harry Case, a forward with an eye for points. Case has an average of better than 13 per game and a total of 104 points in eight games.

Larry Kosh, a guard, is next with 80 points and average and a 6-point total. Bill Newell at the other guard spot has collected 56 points for an average of seven per game. Keith Laughlin, Don Evans and Bob Hume, who have been alternating at the forward job, have 25, 24 and 23 points, respectively.

Unquestionably a well-rounded squad now, the Clippers are well stocked with reserve power, but the services threaten to demolish that smooth-working machine somewhat, Coach Cabas says.

Laughlin, a senior and starter, is slated to enter the armed forces before too many games are past and several other Clippers are contemplating enlistment.

With that problem facing him and the complete round of Tri-County competition yet on the books, Coach Cabas has his worries. So far the Columbiana outfit has taken Fairfield, Salem, New Waterford, Lisbon, North Lima, Alumni, Austintown Pitch and Leetonia in stride, but the future opposition looms as strong, if not stronger than any faced so far.

The next four games, with Lisbon, Minerva, East Palestine, and Sebring are all Tri-County games—and plenty important to a title-seeking team.

East Palestine, Louisville, Boardman and Sebring are the obvious tough assignments in the loop race and some as difficult or more so may crop up—as they always do when the rivalries and import are as heavy as in the seven-team league.

Police Quiet Hunters

MARIETTA, Ill.—The Harrisburg police force was called to maintain order when a hardware store put 350 boxes of shotgun shells 15 shells to the box, on sale recently. Approximately 500 would-be purchasers lined the sidewalk in front of the store and when they couldn't buy the size they wanted, they took another size, with the idea of swapping with somebody who needed that size or borrowing a neighbor's shotgun to fit the shells.

COACHES SUGGEST RULE CHANGES AT NCAA CONVENTION

Turn Down Once Again Plan to Number Plays In Grid Game

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Already confronted with a recommendation by coaches that revisions be made in the football rules, the National Collegiate Athletic Association formally opened its 39th annual convention here today.

The football coaches, who have been meeting for two days, submitted five major rule changes to the NCAA's rules committee which will meet within a few weeks.

The NCAA currently is operating under "frozen" football rules, but Prof. Philip O. Badger of New York university, president of the organization, said yesterday he believed the time had come for rule changes at least to be "considered."

The major changes proposed by the coaches would outlaw the out of bounds kickoff and would permit the throwing of forward passes anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. Now the passer must be five yards behind the line.

The first session today was a joint meeting of the NCAA, the Football Coaches association and the National Physical Education association.

One of the first thoughts that popped up was what the NCAA is going to do about college basketball teams which are using professional baseball players. Prof. Badger asserted, however, that that question had been settled.

Eligibility No Problem. He explained that the NCAA has its eligibility rules and assumes its members will live up to them. If they don't, they're ineligible to compete in the NCAA basketball tournaments.

He said schools such as Hamline and Ohio university, which are using pro baseball players on their basketball teams, could not compete in the NCAA basketball tournaments with those players.

Howie Schultz, Brooklyn Dodger first baseman, plays with Hamline and Jerry Maldovan, Newark International league pitcher, is playing with Ohio university.

In addition to the kickoff and forward pass changes the coaches proposed:

1. That use of a one-inch tee on the kickoff be mandatory.

2. That the hand must be held against the body in making a forearm block and the striking an opponent's face with the elbow be prohibited.

3. That an attempted lateral pass which is thrown forward result in a penalty of five yards from the point where the pass is thrown.

Suggestions that games consist of 100 plays and that second and fourth periods run 13 minutes with six plays after that were voted down.

Goshen Cagers Meet Sebring; Revise Slate

DAMASCUS, Jan. 12—Goshen Township High school's cagers are looking forward to three successive home games, two of which will be Friday and Saturday evenings, with Springfield township and Sebring McKinley furnishing the opposition.

Next week Goshen will play three games and two of them, in succession, will be with Leetonia.

The Leetonia cagers will come here Tuesday night and Goshen will play a return engagement at Leetonia, Friday evening, Jan. 19.

Goshen cagers will invade North Lima Saturday night, January 20. The Goshen schedule as revised by John E. Rayburn, faculty manager, follows:

Jan. 12—Springfield Twp. here. Jan. 13—Sebring, here. Jan. 16—Leetonia, here. Jan. 19—Leetonia, away. Jan. 20—North Lima, away. Jan. 23—North Jackson, away. Jan. 26—Beloit, away. Jan. 30—Fairfield Twp. away. Feb. 2—North Lima, here. Feb. 6—Berlin Center, away. Feb. 9—Alwater, here.

ROMANTIC MASQUERADE

by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
For three months, she thought, I've waited for this letter. Her heart began to find excuses for its tardiness. Steve had meant to answer before. He'd been ill. He'd been away. He hadn't got her letter. It had been lost. Or he'd got it and mislaid it, and didn't know her address.

Her fingers were awkward as she tried to open it, but finally she ripped it apart and slid out a single sheet of paper.
"Darling, Daph," it began. "I'm doing my bit in Dad's factory and that I'd see if I could master the typewriter. YOU owe—owe—me—$7 letters now."

Daphne saw Buff's signature scrawled across the bottom of the sheet.

That night, when she answered Buff's seven letters, she wrote: "I am going to marry Alan."

Getting into a dress of lettuce green lace which looked (but wasn't) cool, Daphne wondered why a Washington hostess should want to entertain at dinner on a seething June night. There was, however, no doubt in her mind as to why she had accepted the invitation to Senator and Mrs. Jonathan Wheatley's mansion. The Wheatleys had thrown a dozen contracts her way.

Mrs. Wheatley said it would be a small party but, when Daphne entered the drawing room, she saw that there were twenty or more guests.

At the far end of the drawing room, a footman was setting up bridge tables, and Daphne very nearly groaned out loud. She'd hoped to get home early and so to bed. Her fitful sleeping this last fortnight had been disturbed with dreams of the past, and the future, and Alan.

Dinner was at nine. Daphne was surprised to find herself healthily hungry, but by the time she'd got through chilled vichyssoise, sole, and breast of chicken under glass, she regretted her indulgence. Her eyelids wouldn't stay up, and the voices at the table buzzed about her meaninglessly. But suddenly she was wide awake.

Across the table, Mrs. Lucius Frayne was saying, "My dears, I had to leave! Do you think I'd abandon my lovely cool island and come back here if it wasn't an epidemic? I make no bones about being afraid of influenza."

"Influenza?" Daphne asked her dinner partner. "What influenza? Where?"

Mrs. Frayne answered for him: "An epidemic of it. It's raging along the coast and in the hinterlands, too. Everywhere!"

Senator Wheatley looked askance, then remarked, "It's really gripe. Mrs. Frayne, la gripe, that's all. Too much furore about it. A handful of people in a community get colds at the same time, and the alarmists yell 'Influenza!' Never had but one real epidemic of 'flu' in this country and that was twenty-five years ago."

"Gripe? In the middle of summer, Senator? I think you are wrong," protested Mrs. Frayne. And her husband declared, "She's right, Jonathan. This is the real thing. The symptoms are precisely the same as they were in the last World War I epidemic."

Daphne asked, with a note of suppressed excitement in her voice, if anyone knew what was being done about it.

Mrs. Frayne, assuming authority, cried, "Yes, there's a marvelous new cure! But cure, or no cure, I left my island as soon as my doctor described the situation. I'm not taking any chances."

"A doctor out in Colorado's made a serum," Lucius Frayne added. "One shot of it, they say, and the flu victim soon recovers—as good as new."

Daphne was saying to herself: "Good as new—until he dies shortly for some unknown reason."

Mrs. Latham, from the far end of the table, remarked, "I've been reading about that new serum. They say it is the greatest discovery since diphtheria serum."

Daphne asked, "Who is the discoverer?"

"His name is Calverton," Frayne answered. "Quite a story about him, too. Soon as the public health people decided it was the real thing, Calverton flew from Colorado with the serum. Town already had thirty dead, but since then no deaths from flu there have been reported."

"It only started a couple of weeks ago," Mrs. Frayne explained. "Tonight's papers are full of that Calverton flight."

Daphne wondered if such reports were true, as she recalled what Dr. Stephan Fenwick—her Steve—had told her about such a serum.

It was after midnight when she got home, but before Daphne went to bed, she decided to look up details of that discussed epidemic the next day. And she was at a public library soon after it opened in the morning, asking to see newspaper files for the fortnight past.

A small announcement of the outbreak of an "unidentifiable disease" in a northern village (that was close to a town in which there was a large defense project) was her first find.

There were two similar items— from north and east—on each succeeding day. Then she came upon a half column story. The Surgeon General of the United States had named the epidemic one of malignant influenza, resembling that which had been so ruthless in 1918.

Daphne had to look no further than the first pages of yesterday's papers. On them were dramatic versions of Dr. Calverton's flight from the laboratory in Colorado to the stricken Eastern area, and the sensational success predicted for his serum.

It seemed to her that from that day, there was no other news in the papers. There were editorials and daily reports on the spread and checking of the epidemic, detailed stories, opinions, interviews. Many scientists, public health figures and medical college heads paid tribute to the new serum and its discoverer.

"It should have been Steve's," Daphne often said to herself during the days following, as she avidly read all available newspapers and magazines concerning the flu spread and its conquering serum.

The news continued to be good, and she knew that Steve would rejoice if the new serum were another medical miracle.

Then on Tuesday, only four days after the Wheatley dinner party, she saw a story in a Boston paper which sent her running into the kitchen to Mrs. Gates.

"Gates! Gates! Listen to this," cried Daphne and read the story aloud.

"Peter Calder, 22-year-old son of former Governor Samuel F. Calder, died suddenly today at the summer home of his parents at Bar Harbor. On leave from the United States Coast Guard, in which he enlisted last February, young Calder was stricken two weeks ago with influenza. He was one of the first to be treated with the Calverton serum, and had completely recovered. He was preparing to return to his station when he dropped dead!"

Daphne asked, "Do you know what that means?"

Mrs. Gates said, "He probably wasn't a strong boy."

"No? Well listen to this: 'Young Calder left Yale at the end of his junior year. He was a member of the water polo team and played varsity football.' . . . Does that sound as if he were a weakling?"

That was on Tuesday. On Wednesday other papers reported seven "flu fatalities." They had been "treated with the new serum, and pronounced cured," but had died suddenly from "causes unknown."

On Thursday, Daphne Willoughby was on her way to North Wintbridge—and Steve. In her purse were all her clippings.

A dozen times on that tiresome, hot trip, Daphne told herself it was a fool's errand; she would not find him there, Steve would have left North Wintbridge by now. He had said he had experiments which would keep him there "a few months longer," but—did he mean two, or three, or four months? It was four months since she'd left North Wintbridge.

Once, just once—and then it was when she was sending a telegram from New York to tell Kate Dennison to meet her train—did she remember that this was the eve of the Fourth of July—the day when she was supposed to give Alan her answer to his marriage proposal. . . . Three hours later, the conductor opened the door, calling "North Wintbridge!"

Daphne was the only passenger alighting from the train, and there wasn't a soul on the deserted station platform, nor a car in sight. Puzzled, she looked at her watch, wondering if the train had got in a little early. But no, it was just midnight.

Then she remembered! There would be fireworks and a bonfire tonight—lasting even until now.

And of course, Kate would be at the celebration. She would not have received the telegram sent at nine o'clock. Up on Main Street, Daphne could see the lights of the Old Oak Inn. It would suit her nicely. She checked in, telephoned the local garage, said she wanted to hire a car. (To Be Continued)

Seven million people saw their homes blacked out

This shows the hurricane's path as it tore up the Atlantic Coast.

On the job in Connecticut. Line crews came to the rescue from as far away as Detroit.

The big blow twisted the steeple off this Massachusetts church and toppled it into the street across the electric wires. Another headache for hard-working linemen!

LAST FALL, a raging hurricane roared up the eastern seaboard and left a $400,000,000 trail of wreckage from North Carolina to Maine.

Falling trees crushed houses, cars and power lines. Poles were snapped off by the fury of the storm. Hundreds of towns, millions of people had no electric service.

The electric light and power companies moved fast. Line crews worked around the clock. 18-hour stretches were common. Clerks, meter readers—everybody—pitched in to replace workers now at war. Short-wave radio helped direct the job.

Men and equipment came to New England from other electric companies as far west as Ohio and Michigan. In fact, some trucks were already rolling before the storm struck.

In most cases, service was quickly restored. Hospitals got first priority, then war plants. It was a staggering job, swiftly done—and helped immeasurably by the patience and understanding of customers.

This hurricane—like fires, floods, tornadoes across the country—dramatized anew the fact that only a major disaster can interrupt electric service.

It proved again that business-managed electric companies are organized and able to meet any emergency as completely as they met America's greatest emergency—war.

ROMANTIC MASQUERADE

By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

For three months, she thought, I've waited for this letter. Her heart began to find excuses for its tardiness. Steve had meant to answer before. He'd been ill. He'd been away. He hadn't got her letter. It had been lost. Or he'd got it and mislaid it, and didn't know her address.

Her fingers were awkward as she tried to open it, but finally she ripped it apart and slid out a single sheet of paper.

"Darling, Daph," it began. "I'm doing my bit in Dad's factory and that I'd see if I could master the typewriter. YOU owe—owe—me 27 letters now."

Daphne saw Buff's signature scrawled across the bottom of the sheet.

That night, when she answered Buff's seven letters, she wrote: "I am going to marry Alan."

Getting into a dress of lettuce green lace which looked (but wasn't) cool, Daphne wondered why a Washington hostess should want to entertain at dinner on a seething June night. There was, however, no doubt in her mind as to why she had accepted the invitation to Senator and Mrs. Jonathan Wheatley's mansion. The Wheatleys had thrown a dozen contracts her way.

Mrs. Wheatley said it would be a small party but, when Daphne entered the drawing room, she saw that there were twenty or more guests.

At the far end of the drawing room, a footman was setting up bridge tables, and Daphne very nearly groaned out loud. She'd hoped to get home early and so to bed. Her fitful sleeping this last fortnight had been disturbed by dreams of the past, and the future, and Alan.

Dinner was at nine. Daphne was surprised to find herself healthily hungry, but by the time she'd got through chilled vichyssoise, sole, and breast of chicken under glass, she regretted her indulgence. Her eyelids wouldn't stay up, and the voices at the table buzzed about her meaninglessly. But suddenly she was wide awake.

Across the table, Mrs. Lucius Frayne was saying, "My dears, I had to leave! Do you think I'd abandon my lovely cool island and come back here if it wasn't an epidemic? I make no bones about being afraid of influenza."

"Influenza?" Daphne asked her dinner partner. "What influenza? Where?"

Mrs. Frayne answered for him: "An epidemic of it. It's raging along the coast and in the hinterlands, too. Everywhere!"

Senator Wheatley looked askance, then remarked, "It's really grippie, Mrs. Frayne. la grippie, that's all. Too much fluore about it. A handful of people in a community get colds at the same time, and the alarmists yell 'Influenza!' Never had but one real epidemic of 'flu' in this country and that was twenty-five years ago."

"Grippie? In the middle of summer, Senator? I think you are wrong," protested Mrs. Frayne. And her husband declared, "She's right, Jonathan. This is the real thing. The symptoms are precisely the same as they were in the last World War I epidemic."

Daphne asked, with a note of suppressed excitement in her voice, if anyone knew what was being done about it.

Mrs. Frayne, assuming authority, cried, "Yes, there's a marvelous new cure! But cure, or no cure, I left my island as soon as my doctor described the situation. I'm not taking any chances."

"A doctor out in Colorado's made a serum," Lucius Frayne added. "One shot of it, they say, and the flu victim soon recovers—as good as new."

Daphne was saying to herself: "Good as new—until he dies shortly for some unknown reason." Mrs. Latham, from the far end of the table, remarked, "I've been reading about that new serum. They say it is the greatest discovery since diphtheria serum."

Daphne asked, "Who is the discoverer?"

"His name is Calverton," Frayne answered. "Quite a story about him, too. Soon as the public health people decided it was the real thing, Calverton flew from Colorado with the serum. Town already had thirty dead, but since then no deaths from flu there have been reported."

"It only started a couple of weeks ago," Mrs. Frayne explained. "Tonight's papers are full of that Calverton flight."

Daphne wondered if such reports were true, as she recalled what Dr. Stephan Fenwick—her Steve—had told her about such a serum.

It was after midnight when she got home, but before Daphne went to bed, she decided to look up details of that discussed epidemic the next day. And she was at a public library soon after it opened in the morning, asking to see newspaper files for the fortnight past.

A small announcement of the outbreak of an "unidentifiable disease" in a northern village (that was close to a town in which there was a large defense project) was her first find.

There were two similar items— from north and east—on each succeeding day. Then she came upon a half column story: The Surgeon General of the United States had named the epidemic one of malignant influenza, resembling that which had been so ruthless in 1918.

Daphne had to look no further than the first pages of yesterday's papers. On them were dramatic versions of Dr. Calverton's flight from the laboratory in Colorado to the stricken Eastern area, and the sensational success predicted for his serum.

It seemed to her that from that day, there was no other news in the papers. There were editorials and daily reports on the spread and checking of the epidemic, detailed stories, opinions, interviews. Many scientists, public health figures and medical college heads paid tribute to the new serum and its discoverer.

"It should have been Steve's," Daphne often said to herself during the days following, as she avidly read all available newspapers and magazines concerning the flu spread and its conquering serum.

The news continued to be good, and she knew that Steve would rejoice if the new serum were another medical miracle.

Then on Tuesday, only four days after the Wheatley dinner party, she saw a story in a Boston paper which sent her running into the kitchen to Mrs. Gates.

"Gates! Gates! Listen to this!" cried Daphne and read the story aloud.

"Peter Calder, 22-year-old son of former Governor Samuel F. Calder, died suddenly today at the summer home of his parents at Bar Harbor. On leave from the United States Coast Guard, in which he enlisted last February, young Calder was stricken two weeks ago with influenza. He was one of the first to be treated with the Calverton serum, and had completely recovered. He was preparing to return to his station when he dropped dead!"

Daphne asked, "Do you know what that means?"

Mrs. Gates said, "He probably wasn't a strong boy."

"No? Well listen to this: 'Young Calder left Yale at the end of his junior year. He was a member of the water polo team and played varsity football.' Does that sound as if he were a weakling?"

That was on Tuesday. On Wednesday other papers reported seven "flu fatalities." They had been "treated with the new serum, and pronounced cured," but had died suddenly from "causes unknown."

On Thursday, Daphne Willoughby was on her way to North Wintridge—and Steve. In her purse were all her clippings.

A dozen times on that tiresome, hot trip, Daphne told herself it was a fool's errand; she would not find him there, Steve would have left North Wintridge by now. He had said he had experiments which would keep him there "a few months longer," but—did he mean two, or three, or four months? It was four months since she'd left North Wintridge.

Once, just once—and then it was when she was sending a telegram from New York to tell Kate Dennison to meet her train—did she remember that this was the eve of the Fourth of July—the day when she was supposed to give Alan her answer to his marriage proposal.

Three hours later, the conductor opened the door, calling "North Wintridge!"

Daphne was the only passenger alighting from the train, and there wasn't a soul on the deserted station platform, nor a car in sight. Puzzled, she looked at her watch, wondering if the train had got in a little early. But no, it was just midnight.

Then she remembered! There would be fireworks and a bonfire tonight—lasting even until now.
